

The beach running from Berrow to Brean is really nice. It's about 20-25 mins drive, you can park on the beach at Berrow (free in winter and circa £5 in summer) and when the tide's in, it's good for a cooling paddle or swim. At low tide, it's not possible to get to the water as the sand is too soft and you'll sink. A lovely dog walking beach at all times. The Berrow end is best with traditional yellow sand but The National Trust's Brean Down is also well worth a visit. Great to visit near or at high tide for a picnic and fantastic sunsets in Sept.
